WHO WILL SUFFER

Byron "Sitting Bull" Johnson came of the warpath yesterday afternoon and laid down his arms. Gen. Harry Sinclair, the oil magnate, received him sitting in state in the Waldorf-Astoria with his baseball clan around him. The fight is over. All the bloodshed of the two tough years is forgotten. All the fighting in the trenches is a dream of the past. Dave Fultz, attorney extraor-dinary for a lot of downtrodden slaves, is preparing to give an imitation of Custer's last battle. When this little bit

Custer's last battle. When this little bit of warfare is finally consummated and the ball players lay six deep on the bloody field of strife the Federal League assault of 1914-15 will have become a thing of the past.

It is a wonderful thing to be able this morning to look upon the faces of the assembled baseball magnates and see in place of bitterness and hate the placid reflection of the stuff that made Bryan famous. It is a pleasant thing to see Garry Herrmann sitting side by side with "Fighting Jim" Gilmore, and fighting him for the check, but for no other reason. It is a great and wonderful thing to see Sinclair, the owner of all the eutlaw baseball cubs in the world, league. Later the Feds' committee, consisting of Gilmore and Sinclair, met words of contentment into his ear. In fact peace was a glorious thing to contemplate there in the Waldorf-Astoria on the 17th day of December, 1915.

There was an intimation early this secondary was a glorious fair of the champions and the players and the players are about to pay the freight, while the players are about to pay the freight, while the players are about to pay the freight, while the players are about to pay the freight, while the magnates of the peace commissioners were several in number. morning when the conferees were still in session that the suit brought by the ds against organized baseball might hold up the signing of the peace pact. Just what basis there was for the report that organized baseball insisted upon the immediate withdrawal of the action could not be learned, and it was said that the peace commissioners were mak-ing progress.

Peace, as Alexander Dowle once said.

The moguls of the American League. Miner, Lannin and Ruppert, convoyed Johnson into port in the afternoon. Byron Sitting Bull came in gracefully and gave up his arms without a mur-mur. Barney Dreyfuss, who went all the way to Chicago without even a clean collar to dictate the terms of surrender, came with the beaten Generals of the younger league. At the Waldorf Gil-more and Sinclair awaited them.
